For a special guest speaker

presentation on the City of St. Petersburg's new zoning category to allow "Missing Middle" housing types along transit corridors, with associated design standards to provide compatibility with the character of adjacent traditional neighborhoods. This is a transformative concept that highlights the need for diverse, affordable housing choices in sustainable, walkable places.

Elizabeth has over 25 years as a practicing planner in the Tampa Bay region in both the public and private sectors, including 11 years with the City of Tampa.
